The COVID-19 pandemic immediately caused major disruptions to economic activity particularly impacting all section of populations including the poor households and micro and small enterprises. 3 Scope of Works (Skill Development and Employment Generation Support):

3.1 Rationale

Bangladesh has undergone an enormous transformation over the past forty years and has long been seen as an example of how aid can support progressive, pro-poor and country driven development. But a major issue has been holding the country back; young people and businesses in Bangladesh are facing a skills crisis. According to the National Skills Development Council (NSDC), each year 2.2 million prospects enter the labor market. Technical Vocational Education and Training Institutions (TVET) in Bangladesh only have the capacity to train up to 1.3 million of them. 79% of Bangladesh's workforce is employed in the informal sector, which is growing at an annual rate of 2.4%, adding 40% of total gross value to the Bangladesh economy. This growth is mostly driven by traditional enterprises. The majority of its labour force is 18-24 years old, an age group which is considered to be the most productive in any economy. Much of this is a result of increasing urbanization which causes many of the new dwellers to engage in informal activities. (https://www.ilo.org/wcmsp5/groups/public/---asia/---ro-bangkok/---ilo-dhaka/documents/genericdocument/wcms_378011.pdf)

For Bangladesh to become a middle-income country, employers and workers must work closer with public training intuitions and become more actively involved in skills development. New and upgraded workplace skills are required for enterprises to retain their workers and remain competitive in an increasingly international market place. Higher and new skills also support improved employability for workers, better career pathways and higher income. Key industries are constrained by the lack of skilled workers in Bangladesh and face reduced future growth due to growing skills gaps. New skills demand is also expected to arise from environmental issues and climate change. Public training institutions, even though these are rapidly improving and expanding, simply cannot meet these demands alone. By working closer with industry and enterprise, not only can these demand be met, but the relevancy of course content to enterprise needs can be ensured.

Since 2009 Social Development Foundation has been directly implementing the Skill Development Program (SDP) at the rural community for addressing and inclusion of socially excluded extreme poor and poor households unemployed and under employed youths and other members through a participative implementation by adapting CDD approach i.e. participatory identification of target beneficiaries, motivation and mobilization for forming groups and gradually developing village level institutions.

Under the Youth Development Activity process, the Youth Skill Development and Employment Generation Support (SD & EGS) initiatives is one of the Interventions of B-03 Sub Components under the B Component of Resilience, Entrepreneurship and Livelihood Improvement (RELI) Project. The RELI project YEGS program has specifically targeted 20,000 youths and the SCMF Project Component -3 (Transformation of Alternative Livelihood of the Coastal Fishing Communities) has also targeted 18,000 youths and fishers to develop their Technical and Vocational Education and Training skills during the tenure (July 2021-June 2026) of project implementation. A number of SD packages have been developed for inviting the TPOs for submitting their EOI to deliver the intended services under the individual package offered. The RMG and Leather products is one of the potential packages where the two major sub components items i.e. RMG and Leather products related skill development courses are included for submitting EOI by TPOs.

Under the RMG and Leather Products servicing package, the formal sector of generating wage employment and semi-formal enterprises i.e. Nano and Micro level mini industry based self-employment promotion will be the main platform or working places/sector where the skilled youths could have contributed and utilized their learned knowledge and skill for boosting up local, national economy as well as expedite foreign currency too. This package has greater demands in respect of widen scope for utilization of labor force in the RMG and Leather products support service operated macro industrial parks, factories and commercial business center.
